ABSTRACT

This booklet reports information gathered in a survey of year-round education activities in the United States and its outlying territories from July 1, 1974 through February 1, 1975, as reported by state and district education agencies. Tables 1-10 summarize various data for all the reported year-round programs, including number and types of operational programs, number of students affected, estimated distribution of students in operational programs, grade levels involved, purpose of programs, extent of curriculum changes, teacher contract effects, evaluation status, and funding sources. Table 11 compares selected data from this year's survey with similar data from 1972-73 and 1973-74. Most of the booklet consists of tables of data describing year-round programs in individual school districts on a state-by-state basis. (JG)

Foreword

Tables I through XI of this survey summarize the latest reports of year-round education activities in the United States as supplied by state and outlying district education agencies. They cover the period July 1, 1974 through February 1, 1975.

Individual activity data are given, by state, on pages 10 through 63.

As with any survey, proper credit must be given to those people who diligently secured and reported the needed information. They are responsible for the timeliness and usefulness of this document; responsibility for errors and omissions remains mine.
